Along the borders of the disaffected place, Yip-pak-shau, which lies on the eastern border of the Kin-chong District, there is snother ringleader named Lin Wai who has under him over a thousand rebels and occupies the place. So that on the 3rd day of this moon (3rd instant). Commanderin-chief, Nich Szehing went with his forces to the disaffected place and joined battle with the insurgents, helped by his officers, Lieut. Colonel Yuk-pin and others on both wings. The result. was that the ring leader Lin Wai and other insurgents, over four hundred in number, were killed, and a great number of rifles, horses, carriages, guns, and banners captured, the rest-being routed and scattered. The said Nich Sz shing is proceeding with his forces to the Hak Fun places to suppress another hand of insurgents. The defiles and passes in the Districts of Ping-lang and Kin-chong, etc., are at present being re-opened and managed in a satisfactory manner. The Edict also commands Ip-chi-chiu, the Com-mander-in-chief of the Land forces, to proceed at once with the officers and troops under him and to pursue and suppress with their combined forces the rebels that are still at large among the Mongolian tribes. He, Commander Ip, must lose no time to stamp them out and to either kill or cap-ture every one of them, and must not allow even one of them to remain in the London, November 9. -The comments of the press upon the advent of the fiftieth anniversary of the birth of the Prince of Wales and on the celebration of the event are various. They make it plain that pubif it was at the expense of the public lie opinion or feeling in regard to the Prince is curiously mixed.

The religious papers generally take oc-than it was formerly in reference to the heir to the throne. Some writers venture to imitate their brothren of the religious press by expressing the hope that the Prince will prove by his course in the immediate future that he is a better man at 50 than he was at 30.

The only paper which indulges in unrestricted sulogy is the Sunday Times, which is controlled by Augustus B. Harris, who owes to the favor of the Prince much of whatever he is or has in the world. The paper remarks that the Prince has always performed the duties of his exalted station with such grace and heartiness that those accustomed to seeing him in the midst of social functions are apt to forget his hours of serious toil, and addr : The Prince's career has been closely watched for years without having been found wanting, and his birthday is hailed with universal sensiments of respect, attention and gratifude among the people. The Star has a radical distribe against what it terms the shams of the day. It suggests that the royal birthday, Guy Fawkes day and the Lord Mayor's show should be celebrated together to save time and expense, and hints that all these whams are nearly at the end of their tether.
